Recycling News
When it comes time to replace an item around the house due to it no longer working or to update to a new, more economical item, look into recycling that old item. So many forms of recycling are available now that adding that old worn out item to a landfill should be a last resort. Items made of steel, aluminum, glass, plastic and paper can mostly all be recycled and made into newly manufactured items. Please recycle!

Metal Recycling
Steel is the most commonly recycled material in the United States. Most steel is recycled from automobiles and appliances at scrap and salvage yards. Much less energy is required to make metal from scrap than from ore and at much less cost to the environment. In fact, new steel can not be made without recycled steel. Many scrap dealers will pay you for the metals, although the amount is not significant. However keeping those items out of a landfill is a great reward.
